

MAINE BATTALIONS TO STORM CAPITAL TO OBTAIN RECOGNITION

DISABLED VETS HERE TOMORROW

Nation-wide Convention to Demand Adequate Treatment of War's Unfortunates.

Scores of maimed war veterans from all parts of the country, coming into Washington to attend the convention of the National Disabled Soldiers' League, which opens here tomorrow, bring stories of a nationwide plot to kill the adjusted compensation or bonus bill which is now before the Senate.

AGAINST CASH PAYMENTS. It developed yesterday that not only has a brief been filed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the President and every member of both houses of Congress, but to nearly 1,000 trade organizations and commercial associations have been mailed statements bitterly opposing the proposed payments to all those who served in the military or naval service in the world war. If the brief to national legislators does not have the desired effect the Chamber figures that word from civilians at home might serve to defeat the measure.

The bill reported to the Senate last week by Senator McCumber of North Dakota calls for the payment of one dollar a day for home service and $1.25 for each day of service overseas, the individual payments not to exceed $500 for domestic service or $625 for service in Europe or Russia. There are other features to the bill, such as choice of land grants and vocational training, but it is against the straight cash payments that the Chamber is waging its battle, according to men coming to Washington. A small coterie of Senators have announced their determination to fight against the cash feature which is planned to start July 1, 1922. These men have devised two schemes. First they hope to prevent the bill from coming to a vote at this session in the hope that it will die of old age and the second is to so amend it that payments will not be made until four years from now.

KING AGAINST BONUS. A third plan has been for the Senators who are now against the bill to muster sufficient strength to defeat it. Senator King of Utah, is one of the most outspoken opponents of the bill. He is opposed to it because it is such a hopeless task that they intend to postpone action or bring about amendments.

Senator King, of Utah, is one of the most outspoken opponents of the bill. He is opposed to it because it is such a hopeless task that they intend to postpone action or bring about amendments. "I am opposed to this bonus legislation," said Senator King. "I look upon it as the entering wedge to a series of similar bills. If it is opposed, and shall be as long as I remain in public life.

"Furthermore, I think it is sheer recklessness for Congress to propose such a bill. It is a bill which is absolutely necessary, and this, in my judgment, is not necessary. "The thing that it is necessary for Congress to do is to take every care in its power of wounded and disabled veterans. As long as the bill is proposed, and shall be as long as I remain in public life.

CALLS IT INTERFERENCE. "Especially do I object to it when I believe the giving of such a gratuity is proposed. It is a bill which is absolutely necessary, and this, in my judgment, is not necessary. "The thing that it is necessary for Congress to do is to take every care in its power of wounded and disabled veterans. As long as the bill is proposed, and shall be as long as I remain in public life.

Opposing Senator King's views is every veterans' association in the country. While there are any number of these organizations having in view some particular form of relief they are fostering, the American Legion is the largest of all and all the ideas of the legion's Cleveland convention last summer are incorporated in the McCumber measure.

Major John G. Emery, national commander of the Legion, will be in Washington this year. While his prime object is to make certain demands for the assistance of all who were wounded in the world war, which is now in session at the Capitol, he will give full time to the compensation bill.

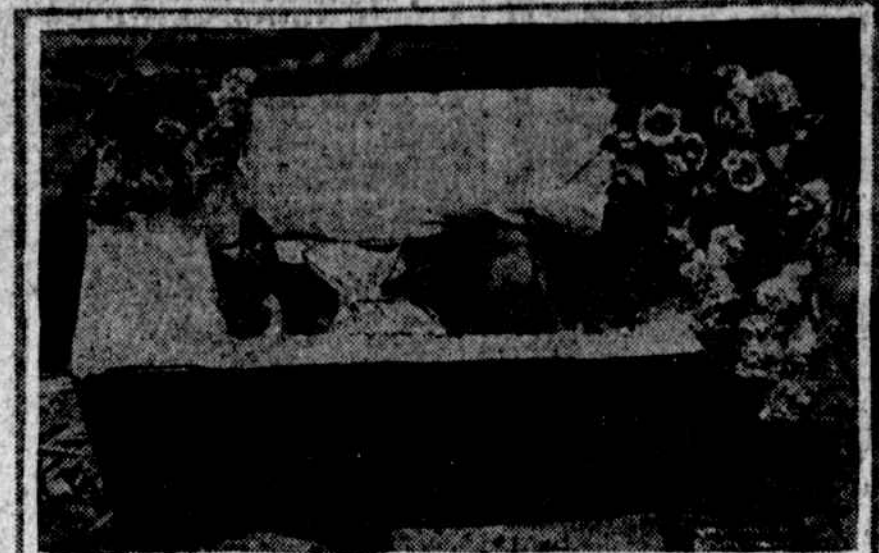

LEGION TO FIGHT. "It is the determination of the American Legion to go forward with the fight, emphasizing always a more vivid conception of each citizen of his personal obligations of service to his country," is the way Major Emery has outlined his platform.

The American Legion will continue its fight for the wounded and disabled until every man who gave his health and strength in the service of his country is adequately and generously provided for. The claim of these men has precedence over all other considerations of the American Legion. With the legislation basically necessary for the relief of the physically disabled passed by Congress, the American Legion will address its full energies to the task of helping those financially disabled by reason of their military or naval service. The five-fold adjusted compensation bill now before Congress is a just and acknowledged obligation the country owes to those who served it.

As practically every member of Congress who saw world war service is a member of the Legion, Major Emery will have no trouble in getting his views before those at the Capitol, and much of his time while here is expected to be concentrated on offsetting the propaganda of the National Chamber of Commerce.

THIS DOG HAS FUNERAL SERVICE IN EVERYTHING

Nero Red Rose was rescued sixteen years ago from a group of street urchins. Mrs. M. Bond, of 709 Fourth street northwest, treated the pup like a child. It died Thursday and was given an elaborate funeral yesterday morning before being interred at the dog cemetery at Aspen Hill.

LIFE HERE LURES MEN TO BAD END, SAYS FIRE-EATER

Social "Octopus" Goes to Heads of All But Wary, Declares Tom Watson.

Washington life lures public men to their political, physical and spiritual destruction, declared Senator Tom Watson of Georgia, who was found today in a philosophic mood. The Georgian, known from coast to coast as a "fire-eater," has been driven from his office by the smoke of a cigarette, lighted by a waiter. Cigarette smoke, he explained, made him sick. Waiting for his room to air, he walked the Capitol corridors and discussed the social evils of the Nation's Capital.

The lives of some of the leaders in Congress during the last quarter century were used by Watson to illustrate the snare he described. The stormy petrel of the Cracker State is taking a "close-up" of Washington with twenty-eight years of hectic career intervening since he was a member of the House.

"The social system in Washington thrives on the souls of public men," said the Georgian, gravely shaking his shaggy mane of iron-gray hair. "It has proved a lure too strong for some of our ablest men in years passed. "With the passing of years, the social octopus has grown in cunning. It is reaching out its tentacles for men every day. It is seductive and alluring. That's the worst of it. The ugly consequences are hidden, and men realize too late.

"Seeking relaxation from exacting labors, and themselves touching elbows with the influences that lead to their ultimate destruction. This comes in many forms and the process is slow, but it is sure to the unwary. "It takes a strong head to withstand these social draughts. The sensation is new and pleasant to most men, but sapping to the strength. Each time they take their pitchers to the well, they return weaker. "I have seen a man who was the master of his vote and the captain of his soul, he will do well to well to avoid social life in Washington."

HUSBAND MUST RESTORE CHILD TO ITS MOTHER

That a few hours of married life proved enough for her husband, who thereafter adopted a course of systematic cruelty toward her, is the allegation heard in Equity Court yesterday when Mrs. Mabel I. Davis appeared to claim the custody of her child after the husband, John Fenton Davis, was served with summons in a suit for limited divorce.

Through Attorney Raymond Neudecker the wife complained that Davis went to the home of his wife's sister in Alexandria and forcibly seized and carried off the three-year-old child of the couple. It was alleged that a few hours after the Davis marriage in Baltimore, in 1917, the husband became tired of his contract and ordered his wife out of the hotel where they were staying.

Justice Hoehling ordered the husband to restore the infant to the mother's custody pending the decision of the court. The limitation of Attorney James A. O'Shea appeared for Davis.

Stars and Stripes, a veterans' newspaper, published in this city, has issued a statement asserting that the attack of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States on bonus legislation was an "effort to scare business men with visions of 'heavenly taxation' or national bankruptcy." It said the chamber's campaign against the bill will prove futile.

"There is reason to doubt the soundness of the argument that payment of compensation to ex-service men would be bad for the country at this time," said Mr. Jones. "Many authorities hold that it would be a much needed stimulus; that the home and farm aid features of the bill would increase productive effort, while the cash feature would be a healthy tonic to the consuming market. In every State when the bonus question has been put to a vote the public has overwhelmingly endorsed it. Business men have been as anxious as laboring men or any other Americans to meet the fair obligation of this nation to those who suffered serious financial setbacks by reason of their war service."

No time is yet been set for a vote on the compensation bill so the campaign in its favor is not only trying to defeat the plan of the commerce chamber, but also endeavoring to shove forward a vote believing that the atmosphere present is favorable to the legislation.

"HUNCHES" FORM VOTING BASIS OF CONGRESSWOMAN

"I Am Learning," Says Miss Robertson, Who Sticks With Party on World Question.

"The Lady from Oklahoma" in Congress, has a horror of war. She is an ardent advocate of peace and believes the costly armament race should stop.

But Miss Alice Robertson, the only woman in Congress, does not know whether to raise her voice in a plea for disarmament at this time, she told the United Press today.

"I have seen three wars," she said. "I went through the horrors of the civil war, I had relatives on both sides. I know what it is to be a refugee."

"In my country they used to go heavily armed, and as a result there were many killings. Armament makes for a tendency to fight."

"When I was teaching school back in Oklahoma I had a picture on the wall, showing a huge Russian and a little Japanese. The children remarked on the comparative size and said the great Russian would have little trouble crushing the little Japanese. And yet the Japanese did not lose the war with Russia."

"We must always think of the bulletheaded United States. Big, good-natured and easy-going. When we got into the world war, we were not ready. We did not get in soon enough."

"But the outstanding thing is that we are not ready."

"I am not sufficiently acquainted with many of these great national and international problems to venture an opinion. Of course I hate war. I love peace. The armament race is costly. And yet what are we to do?"

Miss Robertson's votes on the various phases of the army and navy appropriations bills, which she has cast on purely party lines.

"It is a pity that matters of this sort should be the subject of partisanship. But I am a Republican."

"I am now going to school. I have been in Congress two months. I am learning."

"God has not blessed us with divine wisdom. We possess instinctive intuition. I believe they call them 'hunches.' So I now am playing 'hunches'."

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS URGED TO ENROLL AT SUMMER CAMP

Recruiting Drive in Progress to Fill Ranks for Course in Tactics.

Boys in the Washington high schools are being recruited for military training in Government camps this summer. It is expected that several hundred students will take up duties at either Camp Simms or Camp Meade in the next two months.

Registration for the cadet camp, which is to be held on the grounds of the District National Guard at Congress Heights, is open only to members of the high school regiments who are declared eligible by their respective school military committees and to members of the brigade rifle team and the medical unit and the rifle and drum corps. Enrollment is open tomorrow and Tuesday, until 4 p. m. No candidate may enroll after 4 o'clock, according to Lieut. Richard R. Day, military instructor of the cadets.

STARTS JUNE 30

In a pamphlet issued to the cadets Lieut. Col. Wallace M. Craigie, professor of military science and tactics for the school cadet organization, declared that only those who abide by the same rules which make them eligible for officerships may attend this camp. While in the camp no rank will be maintained by any cadet. They are to be known as candidates for staff positions.

The boys will start their encampment on June 30, and will end on July 4. It is to cost the recruits $1 a day. The purpose of the camp, according to Stephen Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of cadet activities, is to increase the knowledge of those who will be leaders in the next class, both officers and non-commissioned officers. He has notified the cadets that while their attendance will have no bearing on the granting of officerships by competitive examination next year, it is to the interest of every boy that he attend.

If a boy does not enroll a written explanation must be sent to the military committee. Lieutenant Day explains that the purpose of this is to embarrass the cadet but to preserve the records. Regular rules for conducting a camp are to be observed by those in charge. Every day a regular routine will be followed, to include recreation, study, lectures, drill and instruction.

RECRUITING DRIVE IN SCHOOLS

Every boy who attends the camp will be provided with some equipment, but is expected to carry such articles as blankets, towels, and wearing apparel. This same rule applies to the Government camp which is to be held at Meade, during August. In the last few days of school recruiting sergeants were at the various schools to enlist boys for the "camp camp" military training of civilians which is to open in the next few weeks. Several hundred boys are going through this training, according to reports from the school. It will be at no cost to them, as the Government is providing transportation.

Sylvan King, who is interested in athletics at Central High School, expects to take a large squad of football players to the camp. He is planning to train previous to the opening of the season. A meeting was held at the school recently, and about fifty boys signified their intention of going to the camp in order to get into condition for football.

TWO BOYS INJURED IN BIKE SMASH-UPS

Three boys were injured in traffic accidents yesterday afternoon. Two of the lads were riding bicycles which were in collision with automobiles.

James Granger, fifteen years old, of 132 North Carolina avenue southeast, was hurt and his bicycle was damaged when struck by a car.

Robert Cook, twelve, 941 C street southwest, was riding a bike at Tenth and C streets when he collided with an automobile driven by George W. Frazier, 100 B street southwest, injuring his head. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital for treatment.

Anthony Ciferatti, five years old, 502 Seventh street southwest, was painfully hurt when he was knocked down by an automobile truck operated by James Graham, colored, at Seventh and E streets southwest. He is confined to his home.

CONGRESSMEN SETTLE WAGER BY FRYING EGGS ON CAPITOL STEP

"You win, John," gasped Congressman Joseph C. Pringley, of Oklahoma, as he mopped his brow and lost a wager with Congressman John W. Langley, of Kentucky, who said he could fry an egg on the Capitol steps. William J. McEvoy, assistant superintendent of the House Press Gallery, a native of Washington, contended that his home town was no hotter than any other. He is shown in the photograph learning for the first time that he lives in a hot climate.

VETS FAVOR PLAN TO FIRE MARRIED WOMEN IN BUREAU

Capital Post Also Wants Law Compelling U. S. to Employ Ex-Soldiers.

Married women in the Government service, and their unmarried sisters, who have been developing writers' cramp from penning letters setting forth their views on the question of ousting female benedictines from the departments, have abandoned the field to the nation's fighting men.

At the bimonthly meeting of National Capital Post, No. 127, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the vote-indorsed movement to discharge married women where husbands are holding Government jobs.

"Owing to the contemplated reduction of force in the Government departments," the committee reported, "the committee recommends that employees having obtained their appointments without competitive examinations be let out first."

"While the ex-service men do believe that they should be given preference to all future appointments if qualified, this the men know is not being practiced in the Government departments, as positions under the Government are constantly being filled with able-bodied men when the ex-service men should have been considered. An act by Congress making the appointments of ex-service men to all non-educational and sub-clerical positions obligatory would have the tendency of remedying a discriminatory practice against ex-service men which now appears to exist throughout the departments."

POLICE MAY GET SCIENCE COURSES AT G. W. U. SOON

Elements of Social Service With Background of Psychology Favored by Officials.

A course for the scientific training of policemen, policewomen and social service workers may be established at George Washington University next season.

For several months officials of the university have had under contemplation the establishment of such a course. Dr. William Carl Rudiger, dean of Teachers' College and director of the summer school, has been making extensive inquiries and voicing suggestions regarding similar courses at other institutions and has held conferences with Mrs. Mina C. Van Winkle, head of the women's bureau of the police department, and other police officials.

The course, if given, would probably deal with abnormal psychology, fundamental principles of sociology, criminology and phases of penology. "We have long felt that there is a distinct need for a course dealing with psychology and sociology for the instruction of persons desiring to engage in social service work," said Dean Rudiger last night. "Just when such a course will be started, however, can not yet be announced."

Prof. John T. Metcalf, of the psychology department of the university, has resigned to accept a position on the faculty of the University of Vermont next September. He is teaching at the George Washington Summer School and will remain until the close of the session. It will be impossible to schedule the "policemen's course" until a successor to Prof. Metcalf is obtained by the university.

MIAMI PICKED UP UNCONSCIOUS HERE PUZZLES DOCTORS

Is Unable to Remember Name of Parent or Location of Home.

Believed to be a victim of amnesia, a white man about twenty-seven years old, today is puzzling physicians at the Washington Asylum Hospital, where he is under mental observation.

Found unconscious at 11 o'clock last night at Seventeenth and C streets southeast by Patrolman E. J. Ball, of the Fifth precinct, the young man was taken to the hospital, and when he recovered this morning he was unable to give either his name or address, although he remembers other details of his life.

VARIOUS TESTS GIVEN

Various psychological tests have been given the young man by Dr. Harry J. Crawford, who has him under observation, in an effort to learn from the man his name or those of relatives who could be notified of his condition, but they have been of no avail.

"I remember working in a mine at Welch, W. Va.," the man interrupted, as he was being questioned. "Yes, last night, I left Welch with two other men and we were to go to Baltimore. That was two weeks ago. I remembered that. Then I remember that I fell asleep somewhere in the woods. I walked to Washington and after reaching here I don't seem to know where I wandered."

"Have you a mother and father?" asked Dr. Crawford.

SAYS FATHER IS DEAD

"My father is dead and my mother is living," said the man. "Where does she live?" The man thought awhile, but answered he could not recall where.

Numerous names and places were suggested to the man, but none of them helped to bring out his identity. When shown his clothes, those he wore last night when found, the man declared:

"They are not my clothes! When I left Welch I had on a good suit of clothes. I do not know where I got these."

"I believe the man is an amnesia victim," said Dr. Crawford.

KNOWS A LITTLE ABOUT SELF

"He seems to know a little about himself, but he neither recalls his own or his parents' name or from what city he originally came from. However, under our treatment I believe we soon will be able to identify him, as we will continue to make suggestions, which we hope will clear his thoughts sufficiently to tell us who he is."

Here is a description of the man and if you can help identify him, notify the police or Dr. Crawford: 35 years old, single, green hair, five feet, six inches tall; weighing about 125 pounds, having blue eyes and light brown hair. When found he wore a blue shirt, white pin-stripe brown coat, khaki pants, black shoes, and a straw hat with green band. On the inner band of the hat are the initials: W. A. H.

While the man is being closely questioned and kept under observation at the hospital, Inspector Clifford L. Grant, chief of detectives, also is aiding in the efforts to identify the man.

TO GET FINGER PRINTS. Inspector Grant will send two detectives to the hospital this afternoon to get a more minute description of the man. His finger prints and photograph also will be taken in an effort to identify him. Grant will send them to the police departments of other cities for possible identification if the man is not identified here.

VOCATIONAL BOARD HAS LOW OVERHEAD COSTS

The overhead expenses of the Federal Board of Vocational Training are extremely low, statistics show. Up to March 1, 1921, the board had spent $89,418.42 since the passage of the rehabilitation act two and a half years ago. Of this, $68,008,000 has been spent in direct allowance for maintenance to the men themselves. The overhead for the entire time since the organization of the rehabilitation work, which includes rent, office equipment and supplies, salaries, printing, travel and subsistence of employees, telephone, and telegraph and other expenses, was approximately 14 per cent.

However, it will be noted that the overhead expenses have decreased to less than 8 per cent in March, 1921, during which the entire cost of expenditures were $11,044,330, of which $250,000 went directly to the men themselves for maintenance.
